The screenshot shows a web browser window displaying a GitHub repository page. The browser's address bar shows the URL `github.com/Srikar2610/hello-world`. The repository name `hello-world` is displayed in the top left, with a 'Public' label next to it. To the right of the repository name are buttons for 'Pin', 'Unwatch' (with a count of 1), 'Fork' (with a count of 0), and 'Star' (with a count of 0). Below the repository name, there are tabs for 'main' (selected), '1 Branch', and '0 Tags'. A search bar labeled 'Go to file' is present, along with 'Add file' and 'Code' buttons. The main content area shows a merge pull request from `Srikar2610/readme-edits` to the `main` branch, with commit hash `1618be5` and the text 'now'. Below this, a file named `README.md` is listed with the action 'Update README.md' and the text 'now'. The `README` section is expanded, showing the title `hello-world` and the text 'this repository is for practicing the github flow I'm srikar. I work in UST.' To the right of the repository name, there is an 'About' section with a description: 'this repository is for practicing the github flow'. Below this are links for 'Readme', 'Activity', '0 stars', '1 watching', and '0 forks'. Further down, there is a 'Releases' section with the text 'No releases published' and a link 'Create a new release'. At the bottom, there is a 'Packages' section with the text 'No packages published' and a link 'Publish your first package'.
